What we are working on

Reading: Students read a story and became familiar with it to identify how characters respond to major events and challenges. They wrote a response using evidence from the text to support their ideas.

Skills: Students recognized and spelled words using -er endings.

Writing: After spending all last week researching into the life of George Washington Carver this week the students learned how to take a position on a subject and use evidence from the research to support it. They completed paragraphs about GWC.

Math: We continued working through Module 6. The students are working with multiplication representing equal groups with tape diagrams/arrays and relating to addition.

Science: We started our unit on sound systems. The students rotated through centers to observe and recognize that when a system produces sound part of the system moves in a characteristic motion called vibration.

Homework

Reading Logs: Reading Logs are due: Monday, 4/4

Students should continue to read and visit the AR website to practice Math Facts in a Flash...

No homework over break!

If students are behind on their Young Author's Project, they should continue to work on it over Spring Break. At this point students should have completed their title/planner, rough drafted (edited), and their About the Author page.
